JL: Yesterday I received a less than intelligent request for a review copy of WW IV from the Nation, in McWilliams (unsigned) name and with mine misspelled. I am sending it today-with a bill! From McWilliams down they will resent this. They may even write about it. That I would welcome! I have things about which to remind McWilliams. And Yglesias. And others there. What you should remember is that they rejected Hoch's piece as an exclsuive. What I remember is suppression of the past and some Cook distr-works, with McWilliams agreeing.

This may be without precedent to them. It will capture their attention and they'll all be talking about that disputatious old bastard.

I have also made a pitch to DILIA, the Czech literary/artistic agency. They did try hard for me in the past. I'll be talking to you about this. IW 1/31/75
